Programme Specific Outcome:

Orientations can be delineated with reference to the teaching of sociology Social orientation (as in responsible citizenship education) Knowledge orientation (as in personality and skill development), Job orientation (as in vocational courses)

- Keeping these orientations in mind, the Board of Studies emphasizes the following as objectives of sociology education:

[a] to equip the students to critically understand and interpret social reality

[b] to generate in students a distinct sociological perspective on socioeconomic and cultural reality

[c] to enhance the social sensitivity and sensibility of the students

[d] to help students acquire skills that will be useful to them in their personal and professional life.

- It is of the view that assessment should support and encourage broad instructional goals such as basic knowledge of the discipline of sociology including phenomenology, theories, techniques, concepts and general principles, encouragement of students' attributes including curiosity, creativity and reasoned understanding the link of sociology to other disciplines. With this in mind it aims to provide a firm foundation in every aspect of sociology and to explain the modern trends in sociology.
