Kaithang is a free food material kit distribution program organized by the Department of Sociology, Students Initiative in Palliative care (SIP), in association with the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) on 14th June 2023. This initiative was coordinated by Mubashira KP, Assistant Professor in the Department of Sociology. Abdul Wasih KK, Head department of Sociology, and Sona Sreenivas, Assistant Professor, provided valuable guidance and support throughout the planning and execution phases of the program. Their expertise in the field of sociology contributed significantly to the success of Kaithang.

Furthermore, a group of enthusiastic students, including Shifan, Ashiq, Althaf, Sanay, Koufiya, and Risvana, actively coordinated the program. Their dedication and commitment played a crucial role in organizing and executing the distribution.

The program aimed to provide essential food items and vegetables to needy students within the college and disadvantaged individuals in the local community.

The primary objective of the Kaithang program was to address the food insecurity faced by needy students within the college and impoverished individuals in the local community. By providing free food material kits, the program aimed to ensure that no individual within the college or nearby locality goes hungry. Additionally, the initiative aimed to raise awareness about food security issues and encourage empathy and support among students.

The program successfully distributed 20 food material kits to the identified needy students of the college and poor people in the local community. The kits contained essential food items and vegetables necessary for a balanced diet. The food items were collected through generous donations from college students, reflecting the solidarity and compassion within the college community.

To address the ongoing food security concerns, the Kaithang program plans to conduct free food material kit distribution once a month. This periodic distribution will help sustain the support to needy students within the college and individuals in the local community, ensuring they have access to nutritious food.

PROGRAMME REPORT

Academic year: 2022-2023

Name of the Program: Kaithang (Food kit distribution)

Date and Time	22/08/2022, 9:00 am
Organized by	Students Initiative in Palliative Care and Department of Sociology
Target Participants	Students of the Campus
Venue	College Campus

The Sociology Department of MTM College of Arts, Science and Commerce, Veliyancode, organized a Food Kit Distribution Program for individuals facing difficulties in meeting their basic needs, particularly related to food scarcity. The program aimed to alleviate hunger and provide support to those in need within the local community. The initiative was coordinated by Ms. Sona Sreenivas under the guidance and leadership of Mr. Abdul Wasih K.K, the Head of the Department.

Program Details:

Date and Venue: The food kit distribution program took place on 22/08/2022 at MTM College of Arts, Science and Commerce, Veliyancode.

Preparation: Prior to the event, the Sociology Department conducted a thorough assessment to identify families and individuals in the local community who were in dire need of food assistance. This assessment ensured that the distribution was targeted towards the most vulnerable individuals.

Donations: The program received generous donations from college faculty, staff and students. These donations included essential food items, such as rice, pulses, cooking oil, spices, and canned goods.

Distribution: On the day of the event, the food kits were arranged for easy distribution.

Volunteer Involvement: The program was made possible with the active involvement of volunteers from the Sociology Department and college community. Their dedication and commitment played a crucial role in the success of the program.

Awareness and Education: While distributing the food kits, the organizers took the opportunity to raise awareness about food insecurity issues and the importance of community support. They emphasized the role of sociological perspectives in understanding and addressing such challenges.

Conclusion:

The Food Kit Distribution Program was a resounding success. It had a significant impact on the lives of the beneficiaries, providing them with much-needed relief during challenging times. Additionally, it fostered a sense of unity and empathy within the community. The Food Kit Distribution Program conducted by the Sociology Department of MTM College of Arts, Science and Commerce, Veliyancode, was a remarkable initiative aimed at addressing food insecurity among the less fortunate members of the community. The program's success was a testament to the dedication of the organizers, the generosity of donors, and the commitment of volunteers. This event not only provided immediate relief but also reinforced the values of social responsibility and community engagement.
